NURSING SHORTFALL

A quarter of mental health nurse roles not filled across south west London

REPORTER

JON MITCHELL

london.newsquest.co.uk

RETAINING and recruiting mental health nurses remains a challenge across south west London as figures show almost a quarter of roles are unfilled.

According to figures compiled by South West London and St George's mental health trust (SWLSTG), nursing vacancy levels were as high as 24.7 per cent in June 2016—more than 6 per cent higher than the trust's overall vacancy levels.

The trust's bosses said the lack of a "co-ordinated recruitment drive" using overly restrictive criteria was responsible.

But a new joined-up approach is showing immediate progress, they added.

Nursing director Vanessa Ford said: "Nursing recruitment remains a challenge across the country and we are pleased to say that in the past six months we have had 54 nurses join the trust.

"We have seen a 22 per cent increase in offers and will continue to work hard recruiting more nursing staff, who are indispensable to the care of mental health patients."

SWLSTG said it was holding interviews more frequently and sooner after prospective nurses had applied. It has also offered applicants extra short-term funding.

Turnover in nursing staff has dropped from 19.1 to 16.3 per cent in the last year, with a month-on-month decline recorded since February. The figure remains above the trust's 15 per cent target.

Bosses will meet today to discuss the numbers, as a report also showed beds were in such high demand that mental health patients were being transferred to hospitals outside the trust, including private ones.

In June, a Royal College of Nursing survey of nurses from across London revealed that less than a fifth believed the capital's health services can cope with increasing strain.

London regional director Bernell Bussue said: "The Government needs to accept that unless there is significant investment there will simply not be enough nurses available to deliver services.

Shortfall: Tolworth Hospital
in Red Lion Road

"An overstretched service cannot just be expected to do keep doing more with the same resources without putting patients at risk."

The high vacancy rate in nursing has also led to an increase in spending on agency staff. SWLSTG spent £476,000 in May, which is £40,000 more than the monthly average for 2015-16.

The trust is responsible for numerous specialist services across Kingston, Richmond, Merton, Wandsworth and Sutton including treatment for young people.

Kingston and Surbiton MP James Berry said: "The lack of training places remains a huge issue with two out of every three people who apply for nursing degrees currently being turned away.

"I am in touch regularly with SWLSTG's chair and chief executive, and recently had a very useful meeting with staff at Tolworth Hospital where I was able to raise concerns brought to me by local residents."

"Unless there is significant investment there will simply not be enough nurses available to deliver services"

Charity tattoo initiative designed to help Pokéfans catch favourites

rachael.burford@london.newsquest.co.uk

A KINGSTON tattoo parlour is helping to ensure Pokémon superfans can catch and keep them forever by inking them with images of the pocket monsters for charity.

Old London Road tattooist Marie Terry came up with the idea to celebrate the 20th anniversary of the original Nintendo game and raise money for animal charities.

Game lovers can get tattooed with their favourite character for a minimum donation of £60. All the money raised will be split between the K9 Partners Dog Sanctuary and the Celia Hammond Animal Trust.

Old London Road manager Ren O'Grady said: "Marie has always been a fan of Pokémon and, with the recent release of Pokémon Go and the fact that it is the 20th anniversary of the series this year, we thought this might be a great way of doing this. Both our chosen charities are no-kill animal rescues and I adopted my own dog from K9 Partners last year."

Miss O'Grady added that the parlour is offering tattoos featuring Pokémon from all generations of the game, meaning there are more than 700 to choose from. She said: "We currently have over 20 people booked in for the tattoos and we are receiving more interest every day."

Pokémon fan Rebecca Harrington is among eager fans and got a purple Espeon tattooed on her thigh.

The 19-year-old, who is off to study politics at Oxford Brookes University next month, said it was the charity initiative that inspired her tattoo.

It was Miss Harrington's fifth inking.

She said: "I have been a fan of Pokémon since I was 10 years old. I got the tattoo partly because of the charity drive - I don't think I would have thought about it otherwise."

"But I am also a huge animal lover. All of my tattoos and piercings were done at Old London Road, it's great that the parlour has decided to do this for such a good cause."

"My boyfriend is going to get an Umbreon, which is a night version of Espeon, tat-

Hockey winner Sophie Bray's Star turn

BRING your daughter to work day was very different for one mum when Olympic hockey gold medalist Sophie Bray dropped in at Surbiton's Royal Star and Garter home.

The ex-Surbiton forward, from Claygate, showed off the gold medal to residents last Wednesday. Her mum, Geneen, has worked in the Upper Brighton Road home since 2013.

Great Britain's women seized their first ever gold after a tense penalty shoot-out against the Netherlands, having drawn 3-3 in normal time.

Bray, now at East Grinstead, said: "It's been a whirlwind of a few days."

"The travelling support was amazing."

She added: "To think that maybe this gold medal can help youngsters pick up sport or even other people go back to the sport would be incredible, and ultimately as a team that's what we set out to do, to inspire people to play."

"So I really hope people are inspired and they pick up a stick and give it go, because the sport has given me so much."

166 miles on child's scooter

A SURBITON man who scooted all the way to Swanage on a child's toy has made it home.

In an athletic feat to rival any Olympian, Brett Alderton set off on his epic journey from the Lamb pub on August 17, arriving three days and 166 miles later.

Mr Alderton has so far raised more than £1,600 for Creative Youth, the charity that organises the International Youth Arts Festival, far exceeding his £1,248 target. He said: "I have some very swollen feet but everything else seems to be ok. The first day was very hot but the second day was lovely, I got wet on the third day and was forced to take a train."

"Everyone has been so supportive. I hope I never have to see a scooter again."

Guilty of lewd act

A man has been found guilty of inciting an autistic boy to give oral sex in cafe toilets on Christmas Eve.

Zafer Dinc, 40, of Gibraltar Crescent, Epsom, was found guilty last Monday of inciting the 14-year-old to engage in sexual activity.

It was said to have happened in the toilets of the Manor Cafe in New Malden, which Dinc owned, on Christmas Eve 2014.

The boy's mother broke down in tears during the trial as she told the court her son had returned home from carol singing, then visited the cafe, before he returned again and told her of the act.

She said that her son told her that he had "sucked his d and kissed him" in the cafe toilets after he had asked Dinc if he could use the loo.

She told the court Dinc had previously blown kisses at her and son which she had thought was "weird".

But reading a statement of agreed facts, prosecutor Kevin Barry had said the teen "mixes truth and fantasy" and liked "making up stories to get other people's attention and sympathy".

Dinc, who told jurors he was married with three children, will be sentenced at Kingston Crown Court on September 26.

Series of complaints by Labour leader fans as tweeters poke fun at him

Corbyn Twitter spat forces parody account to rename

KILLJOY Corbynites have forced a Surbiton parody Twitter account to change its name after it poked fun at the Labour leader and the group that exists to promote him.

@MomentumSurb had racked up 500 followers, and almost as many complaints, after a series of tweets in which they called themselves "100 per cent copper-plated gold standard Corbyn fanatics" and branded the people who oppose them "bastards".

After an online Kingston Guardian article last Tuesday the account reached more than 800 followers and was forced to change its name to @MoanmentumSurb after a series of complaints to Twitter by fans of Mr Corbyn.

The account still claims it is the "best thing to come out of Surbiton since the A3".

It adds: "The women make the tea, the men make the decisions. Same as in #Cor-

Twitter spat: Jeremy Corbyn, inset

byn's office."

One of the women behind the account says it was set up for serious reasons.

She said: "It's impossible to argue with Corbyn supporters as many of them – not all but a lot of them – behave as if they're part of a cult."

"They will accept no criticism and truly seem to believe Jeremy can do no wrong. We are a few Labour party members who think Corbyn is doing immense harm to the party. We are the voice of the moderates.

"The only way to make our point was to parody the way some Corbynites talk."

"Everything we tweet is taken from a forum or comment made by a real Corbyn supporter and it's interesting how some have assumed such comments were made entirely seriously."

She added: "Twitter emailed us to say they've had a complaint and we must change our name and our bio to make it clear we're a parody account. This we have done. If we hadn't complied they'd have shut us down."

Momentum is a grassroots Labour group that "builds on the energy and enthusiasm from the Jeremy Corbyn for Labour Leader campaign".

Suspensions were raised about the validity of the account after a series of seemingly sarcastic tweets. One read: "Momentum is running this Labour Leadership election so if you don't vote Corbyn we will know AND WE WILL FIND YOU!!!!!!"

The people behind the account say they want to draw attention to the aggression of some Corbyn supporters, including perceived anti-Semitism in the party.

An account administrator said: "We were horrified our local Labour party voted to support Corbyn in the leadership election. That is not the way to win people back."

One Corbyn backer asked on Twitter: "Why would anyone play such immature games? Ridiculous."

The official Momentum political group did not respond

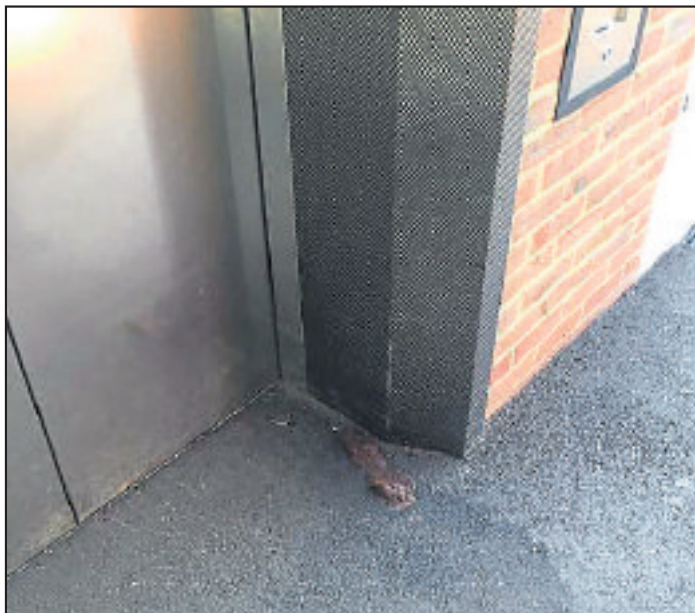

ABUSE IMAGES: A MAN has been spared jail after being convicted of making indecent images of children. Jonathan Morris, 46, of Mortimer Crescent, Worcester Park, admitted making 97 images of children, and was sentenced at Redhill Magistrates' Court on August 19. He must undertake 120 hours of unpaid work and was given a sexual harm prevention order to last five years.

DRIVER FINED: A DRINK-DRIVER who was more than twice the alcohol limit has been given 10 points on his licence and fined £384. Stuart McGregor Dallas, 33, of Oakhill Road, Wandsworth, drunkenly drove a red Mini in Robin Hood Lane in Kingston on June 12. He was also ordered to pay £85 costs and a £38 victim surcharge at Wimbledon Magistrates' Court on August 17.

ESTATE FUN: A TOMBOLA, fair attractions and donkey rides will return to a Norbiton estate for its annual fun fair. The Cambridge Road Estates Fun Day takes place on Madingley Green, Kingston Road, on Saturday noon-4pm. Prizes at the event include a family ticket for Chessington World of Adventures.

Commuters are faced with human mess left by lift at railway station

Unsavoury sight: The alleged excrement at New Malden

Ashley Wilcox

A HORRIFIED commuter has photographed what appears to be human excrement on the platform of New Malden train station.

Ashley Wilcox first complained about the mess by the lift on platform one just after 7.30am last Tuesday by tweeting to South West Trains.

But he tweeted a picture of the excrement at 7.40am the following morning, complaining that it had still not been cleaned up.

The operator apologised and assured Mr Wilcox that a member of staff was on their way to clean the mess.

It is not yet known how the excrement came to be by the lift.

Sir sacked after pupil found ‘sexualised’ pictures on internet

School pays out after firing teacher over art

jonathan.mitchell@london.newsquest.co.uk

A NEW Malden school has paid out to a teacher who was fired after his “sexualised” artist choice led a pupil to search for explicit images online.

Peter Knowles, 54, was head of art at Coombe Boys’ School when he chose surrealist artist HR Giger as the subject of a GCSE class in autumn 2013.

He was also accused of “pretending to want to cut the beard of a Muslim pupil” in a series of allegations that led to his suspension in December 2013 and eventual dismissal for gross misconduct.

But after an employment tribunal in Croydon, Coombe Boys’ School settled the case with Mr Knowles last Monday.

Mr Knowles, who now lives in Dorking, signed a non-disclosure agreement with the school, prohibiting him from releasing details of the settlement.

He was not at Coombe Boys’ when the pupil googled Giger, who is included on the national

Settlement: Peter Knowles, inset, and an alien designed by HR Giger curriculum, and the class was being overseen by a fellow teacher.

In a statement submitted to the court, head teacher Deborah Walls said: “Boys especially are very easily influenced and some of the Giger images, I felt, were far too sexualised.”

A local authority designated officer from Kingston Council met with Mrs Walls in October 2014, but found that Mr Knowles had “not acted in a way which questioned his suitability to work with children”.

Despite this, Mrs Walls continued to believe Mr Knowles had still acted “entirely inappropriately”, the tribunal heard.

In written evidence Mr Knowles said his career and family had been “irreparably damaged” by the allegations.

The school could not be reached for comment.

Youngsters receive best ever grades despite general drop across country

Pupils celebrate as schools buck GCSE trend nationally

REPORTER

rachael.burford@london.newsquest.co.uk

SCHOOLS across Kingston celebrated their best ever GCSE results despite a national decline in good grades.

Most Kingston schools far exceeded the national average of 66.9 per cent with five A* to Cs, and many reported a significant jump in scores.

Coombe Girls' School recorded its best ever results with 88 per cent of Year 11 students achieving five A* to C grades including English and maths.

The boys' school also did well, notching a seven per cent increase on last year's results, with 82 per cent of students getting five A* to Cs.

Head teacher David Smith said: "It is wonderful to have this confirmation of the outstanding work by the staff and students at the school."

Chessington Community College also recorded its best ever results with 66 per cent

Grades: Southborough and Richard Challoner pupils, and Surbiton High's Silke Strachan getting five A* to C grades, including English and maths.

Some of the college's top achievers included Callum Paul who got 12 A* to A grades and Dyar Hussain who achieved 11 A* to A grades.

Head teacher Ashraf Ali said: "I am proud of each student who outperformed, even their own expectations."

Deputy head Ian O'Brien said: "We know that they will be able to rise to the challenge ahead."

Hollyfield School, which was rated 'good' by Ofsted in May two years after being ordered to improve, saw 78 per cent of students come away with five A* to Cs.

Tiffin School saw a slight decline in results but still reported some of the best in the borough.

Boys' A* grades were down four percentage points on last year but students saw 98 per cent A* to C grades in every subject overall.

Aditya Deshpande, 16, got 10 A*s, an A and a B.

He said: "I put it down to my parents. They were the ones making sure I wasn't staying up all night watching Netflix."

Tiffin Girls did outstandingly well, with every pupil passing every subject, while 64 per cent of all grades were A*.

Surbiton High School also reported a 100 per cent pass rate.

Prisoners to receive free books

THE Metropolitan Police will give out free books to prisoners in all its London cells.

The project, called 'Books in Nicks', will work with the charity Give A Book to offer detainees all across the capital the chance to choose a book from over 30 titles, which they can keep free of charge.

'Books in Nicks' came into being after Special Constable Steve Whitmore was asked by an 18-year-old detainee, who had been arrested for assault and possession of drugs, if he could borrow a book while in custody earlier this year.

SC Whitmore lent the man his own book, Catcher in the Rye, and told him he could keep it.

SC Whitmore said: "The look on his face was amazing, his attitude and hostility towards me completely changed and it created common ground for us to talk about."

The donated books, which include Catcher in the Rye, Treasure Island, Moby Dick and Great Expectations, are available in a number of different languages and contain leaflets advertising free educational courses.

THIS month, the death of the fifth cyclist this year in London was confirmed by the Metropolitan Police.

John Still, a 67-year-old from Lambeth, died in hospital 11 days after he was hit by a car in Madeira Road, Mitcham, on April 19.

His death joins those of Christopher Hope, 58, who died on May 15 four days after he was hit by a car in Rainham Road, Hornchurch, 25-year-old student Magda Tadj, who was hit by a lorry on May 23 in St James' Way, Croydon, father-of-three Dan Stephenson, 45, who was hit by a bus in Aldwych on June 5, and 75-year-old Frank Cubis, who died on July 5 – a month after he was hit by a van in Ealing.

And even this year's celebration of all things cycling in the capital, Ride London, was marred by tragedy, after 48-year-old rider Robin Chard collapsed and died from a cardiac arrest on Kingston Bridge.

The event was brought to a halt after two serious crashes in Pyrford, near Woking, and Thames Ditton, which led to two riders being airlifted to hospital after one crashed into a tree and another received a serious head injury after falling off his bike.

So is enough being done to protect cyclists on our roads?

Gears for fears

As Team GB's riders rake in ever more Olympic medals, our love of cycling is only growing. But how safe are the roads of our capital, and what can be done to make them safer? PIPPA ALLEN-KINROSS reports Bristow, said: "Although Brake actively encourages cycling, we understand this clearly has to be done in a safe environment where lives are not put in danger.

"Travelling on a bike needs to be supported by the correct infrastructure, such as traffic-free and segregated paths, and slower speed limits.

"Unfortunately, many of our cities are not equipped to handle high volumes of cyclists. While we appreciate councils face making some challenging decisions to save money, they also have a duty to provide cyclists with safe and sustainable ways to use our roads."

Deaths to cyclists in London peaked at 16 in 2011, the highest since 19 people lost their lives in 2006, before a steady reduction with 14 recorded in 2012 and 2013, and 13 in 2014. The figure dropped to nine last year.

Campaigns co-ordinator at Cycling UK, Sam Jones, said he believed that London was miles ahead of the rest of the country when it came to cycling safety, including the introduction of cycling superhighways.

Mr Jones said: "London is Popularity: The Ride London event. Left: Magda Tadj died in May after being hit by a lorry in Croydon; Insets: An air ambulance in Mitcham Common after John Still was hit by a car; Forensics tent in St James's Road after Ms Tadj's accident doing a lot of good work in terms of making conditions better for cyclists. It's about keeping that space for cycling, and making it safer.

"There's far fewer lorries than cars on the road, but they claim the lion's share of accidents with cyclists, particularly in London. That's why we are pleased that [Mayor of London] Sadiq Khan has committed to increasing the number of safer direct vision lorries on London's roads, which help to tackle blind spots.

"London isn't perfect by any means, but we have seen definite investment going into making cycling safer across the capital. Compared to the rest of the country, London has got it pretty good."

Sadiq Khan hands back Plough Lane AFC Wimbledon stadium decision to Merton Council

Quite right too. The correct decision has been made, to enable the rejuvenation of a dismal corner of the LB of Merton. The scale and suitability of the development should also be commended.

DOOGLES

9.6% social housing. Pathetic. Well done Merton for throwing your own development plan out the window.

M WILEY

Whatever side you are on, you can't deny the whole area needs a shake-up. It will rejuvenate and be a shot in the arm for 99% of businesses in the local area.

Bag It, Beat It

THIS September is 'Women and Heart Disease Awareness Month' at the British Heart Foundation (BHF) and I'm writing to ask your readers to help fund vital research into heart disease by taking part our in 'Bag It, Beat It' campaign.

Around 28,000 women die from a heart attack each year in the UK – that's three every hour. But surveys have shown that women are less likely than men to recognise the symptoms of a heart attack and seek help.

Simply fill a bag with unwanted clothes, shoes, books, handbags, DVDs, CDs, bric-a-brac and children's toys, to 'Bag It, Beat It'. All donations will help the BHF to fund life-saving heart research.

It is a sad reality that coronary heart disease is the single biggest killer in the UK, causing the deaths of over 5,930 people in London each year, around 2,370 of which are women, but with the continued support of the local community the BHF can fight harder to reduce this figure.

For details visit bhf.org.uk/bagit or to book a free collection call 0808 250 0024.

Unfair fines

CLLR Doyle explains that Cox Lane restrictions are in place to stop HGVs from using the bus lane and very sensible it is. However, any vehicle that can get through the restrictions has access to the roads beyond. Surely then, it is immaterial whether these vehicles use the bus lane or go through the restrictors, therefore the only penalties should be for HGVs. Fining drivers other than for that is just a money-making exercise.

Tax cyclists

UNABLE to get to the exhibitions I went online to view the plans for the 'mini Holland' projects. I have lived in Kingston since 1965 and watched it change from a beautiful ancient market town to a hotch potch of old and new.

In that time Kingston Polytechnic has become a university and student accommodation has been built on all the prime sites in the borough, to the detriment of all the people on Kingston council's housing waiting list.

The students also have their own bus service to ferry them around to the various teaching hubs and Kingston has become primarily a university town.

Now it seems it is the cyclists' time to be pampered even more and it is time they were licensed, insured and paid road tax to make a contribution to these projects which are designed primarily for them.

It wasn't clear on the plans whether residents with mobility scooters or motorised wheelchairs will be sharing the cyclist or pedestrian lanes.

The cyclists who use Richmond Park not to admire the beautiful surroundings but to use the circular road for their 'time trials' and, as reported in last week's Comet, to dispose of their litter as they ride.

Health poster isn't disgusting

I FIND it difficult to understand what is "disgusting" about these posters (Kingstonguardian.co.uk). Indeed, Kingston Council is to be congratulated on leading a responsible public health campaign which is in no way "offensive".

Nevertheless, CLLR Mary Clark is correct to point out that the poster fails to make clear what pill is referred to. I trust we will not have to wait too long to see another poster giving information on the availability of the contraceptive and "morning after" pills.

Condoms also need to be promoted and young people advised not to leave home without them, just as they would not leave home without their smart-phones!

To restrict this campaign to universities and sexual health clinics would be very short-sighted. The campaign should have as far a reach as possible.

Personal morals are formed by sound parental guidance and positive role models, not by factual information designed to protect from infection and unwanted pregnancy.

I am fortunate to have seven grandchildren and I know that their parents will ensure they are aware of the challenges life will throw at them and be equipped to deal with them safely and responsibly. Ignorance is the cause of poor life choices.

If these posters are removed following a few misguided complaints I would like to register my protest in the strongest possible terms.

What I do find "disgusting" and "offensive" is the proliferation of gambling outlets on the high street and the advertisements designed to hook people in with their so called "free bets".

Breakfasts, bug bites and being seen on film in the bogs

Editor Andrew Parkes has a number of thoughts every week, here are just five of them

5 THOUGHTS OF THE WEEK...

1. I had an early meeting one day this week and found myself in town at 7am. The only place I could find open for breakfast was a large pub chain. I have to report the food was great, the cappuccino better still, the service was excellent and all for under a fiver, I even got a window seat in the sunshine. The only thing that left me feeling a little uneasy was that by 7.30am I counted nine people sat around me with pints.

2. Actually, there was one other thing which left me feeling a little uneasy. When I visited the gents I noticed there was a CCTV camera over the top of the urinals. This in itself didn't concern but when I returned to the bar I could clearly see the CCTV images flashed to anyone who cared to look. I wasn't interested to see who was stood at the urinals so I returned to my seat. What do you think, should we have CCTV in toilets?

3. Only 12 per cent of tickets available for the Paralympics have been sold. Is this the fault of the hosts in Rio? I don't think so, it's just a case of supply and demand. The harsh fact is less people want to watch the Paralympics. The same capitalist values operate right across sport. Hockey remains a minority sport and will never attract the crowds and mega money soccer attracts.

4. I didn't know it was World Dog Day until I saw a letter arrive in the office. There might be some 'ruff' types around our office, but I don't think bringing in pooches would be a good idea. The nice person from Mars Petcare says: "Dogs in the office offer a sense of comfort, relieve stress and even improve productivity". We've just had a new puppy at home and none of this applies. I realise older dogs are much easier to look after, but there's a load of other issues.

5. And finally, does our blood change in some way as we get older? When I was younger I was never troubled by midges and other annoying biting insects, whereas as my brother always was. I spoke to him the other day and he is now rarely bothered by the beasts, but I now get munched mercilessly.

GCSE RESULTS

Paul Mundy-Castle

AWESOME ACADEMY

RICHMOND Park Academy is a beautiful and well equipped campus in a fantastic location.

With a new Principal, Paul Mundy-Castle and an experienced Senior Leadership Team it offers committed and approachable teachers, an aspirational educational environment for all students and an expansive and inclusive extracurricular provision.

57% of our students achieved 5 A*-C GCSE's this year but within that total were some real highlights. 15% of mathematics students achieved A*/A. Triple Science also outperformed its own high targets and 2014/15 performance. Biology and Chemistry achieved 91.3% and Physics achieved 95.7%. Across all 3 subjects nearly 25% achieved A*/A.

My Mundy-Castle reflected on the results: "As the new Principal of Richmond Park Academy I have reviewed this set of results with great interest. Many students and teachers have much to be proud of."

"The improvement in mathematics is encouraging and the Triple Science success was exceptional with 25% achieving A* or A. However, aspirations for RPA are much higher for consistent performance across the whole range of subjects."

"My Senior Leadership Team and I are committed to delivering that consistency of performance going forward. Prospective parents and students can be assured that RPA will expect the very highest of standards."

What's on

LUKE WHO'S IN CONTROL

Sci-fi thrillers from the last 30 years invariably owe a debt to a certain Ridley Scott, but perhaps that more true for Morgan than most.

The story of a synthetic human with unimaginable powers going rogue is directed by the legendary Alien and Blade Runner director's son, Luke, while Sir Ridley produces.

Luke has worked as a second unit director on his dad's films Exodus: Gods and Kings and The Martian. Morgan is his feature film debut and stars Kate Mara (pictured), Anya Taylor-Joy, Toby Jones, Paul Giamatti and Jennifer Jason Leigh.

Ahead of its release on September 2, Luke Scott discussed the film with What's On's film critic MARK FOKER...

This is your directing debut in a feature film. How did this differ from some of your previous directing projects? I suppose the main difference is that you have a much larger responsibility on your shoulders. Although having said that, every directing experience has their unique issues from commercials to movies. You just need to work things out – do your homework.

Had you been actively looking for a particular script and movie to come along that you and your father (Ridley Scott) could collaborate on as equals? Not really. It was mostly because my dad's company Scott Free was involved, so the opportunity was just there. We both work for the company so it just made sense.

How did you get together with script writer Seth Owen. Did you contact him or did he approach you? That's a good question. I had made a short film called Loom which I was also learning how to use a new 3D camera.

It was a kind of sci-fi Frankenstein story with actor Giovanni Ribisi who creates an artificial girl and hides her in the genetics factory where he is a quality control manager. Seth expanded on the ideas in Loom which became the inspiration for Morgan. Writers and film makers seem obsessed with bio engineered and synthetic human evolution. How far away do you think we are for this to be a reality and should we be tampering with nature? For the film we researched how synthetic humans would look, which was native to our Morgan and this defined the character.

This was before Ex-Machina (2015) which was actually an android whereas our Morgan was a synthetic creation and not a machine. Although some may say that humans are remarkable machines. There are already bio technology gene editing tools out there.

On that subject. Where did you find actress Anya Taylor-Joy who portrays Morgan and what made her stand out from the other actors who auditioned for the role or was she your first choice? No we did audition many people and it was a tough group. But with Anya we saw a copy of The Witch (2015) where she played Thomasin and she showed so much sensitivity and craft for a debut. She came in and was just so perfect for the part.

Talking of which you have a great cast assembled for this film. With the likes of Paul Giamatti, Toby Jones and Kate Mara, all of who have appeared as Marvel movie characters so no strangers to sci-fi. Plus, you also have Jennifer Jason Leigh. Did you choose your cast yourself? Yes... my God! Assembling this cast was beyond my wildest dreams. How was I going to handling these great actors? It was overwhelming. I had to look as though I knew what I was doing. Actually I just let them get on with it. I couldn't have asked for a better cast. If you could direct any one of your father's classic films which one would you choose? Wow! Tough question. Hmm I do like Alien and Blade Runner but to be honest I think I'd go for The Duellist (1977). It's always been one of my favourites and I love its purity.

Morgan is out September 2.

As JIM PALMER finds out, the cut and thrust world of fashion in post-war Paris is the subject of Amazon Prime drama, The Collection...

GRANDDESIGNS

Streaming is no longer the future, it's the present. When was the last time you got hooked on a show that wasn't on Netflix, Amazon or Now TV?

While regular telly does still have its unmissable hits (hello Sherlock and Great British Bake Off), Netflix et al have given us the likes of Breaking Bad, Orange is the New Black and House of Cards.

Amazon Prime's not inconsiderable successes have included award winners and critical winners such as Mr Robot, Transparent, Preacher and the upcoming Grand Tour by Jeremy Clarkson, Richard Hammond and James May.

But first, and for drama heads rather than petrol heads, comes The Collection. From writer and showrunner Oliver Goldstick, the man behind Ugly Betty and Pretty Little Liars, it is a tense and twisting drama set in an exclusive fashion house in post-war Paris.

It's a family drama but episode one alone gives us murder, sibling rivalry, class and culture clashes, romance, treachery, deceit, a Nazi hangover and lots of dark secrets to be revealed. Richard Coyle (Coupling) leads the cast as designer Paul Sabine.

At the show's launch at Amazon Fashion Studios in London, Coyle said: "He is a brilliant businessman, I think he is a gangster in some ways and a romantic and a thug."

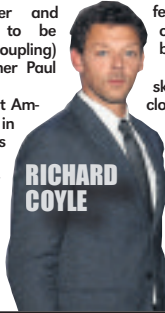

"He is a street kid and I think that is one of the interesting things about him. He has reinvented himself. He grown up on the streets and he has pulled himself and his family out of the gutter and he has made the house, this label, from nothing.

"He is incredibly resourceful, incredibly driven, ambitious, ferocious. There is a lot of secrets in the closet behind him."

Goldstick added: "The skeletons wear the best clothes when they come out of the closet."

The Collection is a US-British-French collaboration with a predominantly Brit cast, which also includes Tom Riley (Kill Your Friends) as Paul Sabine's mercurial brother

Claude. It is visually stunning, with gorgeous costumes and some filming in Paris but mostly in Swansea. And while the season opener throws up many questions, be prepared for things to get very twisted as the series rolls on.

Goldstick said: "Part of my attraction to this project is that we don't get to do all our episodes before we start filming in America.

I've been doing it for 25 years.

"This is the chance to write a novel. It feels like a prologue, I know I get to write a second and third and this is all going to build and we can take our time."

Amazon Prime Video's The Collection, will be available to Prime members in the UK from Friday, September 2.

SECRET WALKS

A secret walk around Merton's green spaces is set to be full of surprises.

The last in Wimbledon Guild's Secret Gardens series of walks is a Magical Mystery Tour on Wednesday, September 7.

Previous walks have included vistas of the London Eye from Parkside, visits to a charming bowling green at Merton Park and access to some of Merton's finest private gardens.

Organiser Melanie Surty-Garcia said: "Our Secret Garden Walks are very popular. Spending time among beautiful, well-cared for plants and trees bursting with vibrant colours and scents is guaranteed to put a smile on your face."

The Secret Garden Magical Mystery Tour is from 10.15am on Wednesday, September 7, Places cost £4 per person and booking is essential. Call 020 8946 0735 or email info@wimbledonguild.co.uk

JOIN THE HUNT FOR TICKETS

A scavenger hunt has been set up across the capital to celebrate the Science Museum's latest exhibit.

Featuring more than 50 cutting edge exhibits and live shows, including a giant interactive orrery, The Wonderlab will open in October.

Throughout the summer, its sponsor Statoil is running a virtual geo-location scavenger hunt to win preview tickets to see the new permanent exhibit before anyone else.

Free to download on mobile devices, it sees scavengers search at three science-themed landmarks in London for Wondroid the robot's missing parts.

Everyone who helps put Wondroid back together again before September 19 will be entered into the prize draw, with winners chosen on September 23.

Statoil's VP Communication Dominic Martin said: "The gallery will inspire the next generation of scientists and engineers to see the world differently through show-stopping, creative and rewarding science-related experiences.

"We hope as many families as possible take up the Statoil Wondroid Challenge with a chance to win a visit to Wonderlab and experience the greatest interactive science gallery in the world before anyone else."

RURAL TASTES

A brasserie opening by the river in Bathersea this autumn promises to use all-British ingredients throughout.

All-day restaurant Nutbourne, coming to the old Ransome's Dock site in Parkgate Road, is owned by brothers Richard, Oliver and Gregory Gladwin whose prior projects have included The Shed in Notting Hill and Rabbit in Chelsea.

Named after the family farm and vineyard in West Sussex where the brothers grew up, it promises a taste of rural life with ingredients coming from the farm as well as from local suppliers or foraging.

Nutbourne will be open from 8am serving breakfasts through to large mains on an open grill.

Making the most of its waterside location, the 65-seat restaurant has an extra 40-cover outside space complete with palm trees, festoon lighting, water troughs, foliage, lily pads and a vine from their vineyard.

Go to @NutbourneSW11 on Twitter.

TARA'S NOVEL APPROACH

A story of love and extremism will open a stunningly refurbished Earlsfield theatre.

Paradise of Assassins, adapted from Abdul Halim Sharar's novel, will be the first show at Tara Theatre since the Edwardian building's 18-month, £2.7-million transformation.

Written more than a century ago and set in medieval Persia, the play tells the story of young lovers who Hussain and Zam-urrud who are separated and Hussain is forced to renounce his faith and become radicalised through the medieval Islamic sect the Assassins in order to regain his love.

Anthony Clark, who directed Tara Arts' first two productions in 1982 and 1984, fittingly returns to direct.

He said: "The struggle for people of faith not to compromise what they believe in in the face of unforeseen circumstances goes to the heart of the human condition. This story touches on terror as political phenomenon and I am interested in the perpetrator who is also a victim."

The former Mission Hall in Garratt Lane has been home to Tara Arts since 1983 and its extensive refurbishment has 'transformed it into a cultural palace for the 21st century', according to artistic director

Jatinder Verma.

Antique doors have been imported from India while the stage floor is made from red earth imported from Devon and tree motifs run throughout the building to reflect the idea that the essence of theatre is telling a story on the earth under a tree.

Tickets cost from £15.50. Go to tara-arts.com or call 020 8333 4457.

DANCE TREAT

Strictly Come Dancing returns next month but if watching on TV is not quite enough then stars of the show from seasons past are coming live to the stage in Wimbledon.

Keep Dancing at New Wimbledon Theatre on September 13 features last year's winning pair Jay McGuinness and Aliona Valani.

Celebrating the world of ballroom and Latin dance, the high energy show also features professional dancers including Strictly pro Robin Windsor.

Tickets cost from £17.90. Go to atgtickets.com or call 0844 8717646.

5 TIPS TO IMPROVE YOUR CV

1. Keep it between 2 and 3 pages

Any more and it looks like you're rambling.

Any less and it looks like you don't care.

2. Keep it clear and easy to read

Curb your creative juices.

Use bullet points and keep sentences short.

3. Always use a cover letter and tailor your CV

Research the company and use the job advert to ensure you stand out as the perfect candidate.

4. 'Pobody's perfect'

But there's not a single reason your CV should have grammar or spelling mistakes.

5. Tell the truth

SEAT UK has just launched a far-reaching marketing campaign, entitled ‘Beautifully Created Summer Test drive Event’, highlighting the quality and style of its entire range, as well as a tempting £500 towards the purchase of any new SEAT.

Emphasising the state-of-the-art engineering and quality of its cars, as well as the emotion and passion of Barcelona, its home city, SEAT’s latest promotion runs until 30th September across all five of its model ranges; Mii, Ibiza, Toledo, Leon and Alhambra. Crucially, the post-test-drive incentive is available in addition to all other SEAT UK offers, which means car buyers can do more than just benefit from a £500 (including VAT) contribution towards the purchase of a new SEAT - they can also take advantage of some tempting finance offers, such as 0% APR representative finance, or, competitively priced Solutions (PCP) finance packages.

There are some seriously tempting offers available. Among them is up to £3,160 off the SE version of SEAT’s iconic Ibiza supermini. Another recent arrival is SEAT’s Leon SE Dynamic. Available in svelte five-door or striking, yet practical, ST (Sports Tourer) bodystyles, the well-equipped mid-trim level costs from £17,700.

The Leon SE Dynamic comes with 17-inch ‘Dynamic’ alloy wheels, dark tinted glass, Tech Pack (satellite navigation, full LED headlights, Bluetooth and DAB digital radio).

Puckle leads charge

GILES Puckle claimed 5-18 on Saturday – his first five-wicket haul since 2013 – to take Malden Wanderers' Surrey Championship Division One survival fight down to the final day. Wanderers posted 278-7, before Puckle, right, spun out visitors Chipstead Coulsdon & Walcountians for 172 in reply. Wanderers share the same points as second-bottom Spencer – but they have secured two more losing draws – ahead of Saturday's trip to Cranleigh.

Run machine: Ks' star man Jahangir Mirza

Mirza is magic for champs

KINGSTONIAN Cricket Club's leading batsman Jahangir Mirza fittingly smashed an unbeaten 132 to clinch the Surrey Championship Division Four title on Saturday.

Mirza, who has scored 778 league runs this season at an average of 70, led his side past Cobham Avorians' 259 all out at King's College sports ground with three wickets and 19 balls to spare. It was the free-scoring number four's third century of the summer to go with the five half centuries he also has to his name.

AK Tyrone's 107 was the bedrock of Cobham's effort that was restricted by 4-16 from Raza Sikander.

The win means skipper Amir Huissain's side, who have lost just two league games this year, are 33 points clear of nearest challengers Sanderstead with only Saturday's trip to Hampton Wick Royal to come.

Win at last

GOALS from strikers Ryan Moss and Pelayo Pico Gomez secured Kingstonian their first wins of the Ryman Premier Division season at the weekend.

The pair struck in Saturday's 2-0 win at Staines Town, before the same combination found the net late on to grab a 2-1 home win over Met Police on Monday.

Ks go to VCD Athletic in the FA Cup on Saturday.

Up and running: Ryan Moss has scored three league goals

THE AFTERMATH: British hockey must capitalise on Rio gold, says Garrard

Golden shot for hockey

SPORTS EDITOR
BY STUART AMOS
samos@london.newsquest.co.uk

SURBITON'S director of hockey Brett Garrard says Team GB's women's hockey gold is an opportunity that must be grasped to grow the game in Britain and wants a medal to visit every club in the country.

Surbiton trio Hollie Webb, Georgie Twigg and Giselle Ansley, in Team GB colours, beat the Netherlands 2-0 in a penalty shuffle shootout after the scores had finished 3-3 in last month's final.

It is the first Olympic gold for GB's hockey programme and the women finished the tournament unbeaten in eight games, winning all matches, except the final, in normal time.

Garrard said: "What they have done is an incredible achievement when you consider the journey they have been on.

"Two years ago they finished 11th or 12th in the World Cup and since then they have won a Commonwealth Games silver and a European gold. They don't know how to lose."

He added: "This is a unique opportunity for grassroots hockey and clubs like us need to grab it with both hands.

"I'd like to see these girls take their medals to every club in the country to inspire the next generation."

Garrard, Britain's most capped men's hockey player, is working hard to set up a homecoming party for Webb, Twigg and Ansley, but he will not rush them back into Women's Hockey League Premier Division action until they are ready.

"This changes everything. I want them to enjoy the moment for as long as it feels right and it will be business as usual when they come back," he added.

When they do return it will be Webb – playing in her first Olympics – who will hold the bragging rights at Sugden Road after her penalty shuffle stroke clinched the gold.

And Garrard revealed it had been made in Surbiton.

"It was the mirror image of her strike that won us the

Seen it all before: Surbiton's Brett Garrard has vast international experience as a player and wants British hockey to capitalise on its gold medal success in Rio play-off final against Canterbury last season and I have seen it a number of times in training," he said.

Haycroft in right frame of mind for Surbiton

Sarah Haycroft will bounce back from her Olympic heartache, says Surbiton director of hockey Brett Garrard.

The 25-year-old Sugden Road skipper narrowly missed selection for Rio and had to watch as Team GB's women won gold in Brazil.

"I'm confident she'll be back in the right frame of mind to lead our team," said Garrard.

"It was unfortunate, but she has never let her disappointment show. She has got her head down and been diligent in training."

Garrard has confirmed New Zealand international Julia King will return to Sugden Road for the forthcoming WHL

Premier Division campaign, which starts at Holcombe on September 17.

Surbiton host a Play Day event this Saturday and new members can give the game a go from 10:30am.

Casuals well up for cup

CORINTHIAN Casuals warmed up for their FA Cup first qualifying round clash with North Leigh on Saturday, by stretching their unbeaten run to 12 matches to hit the top of the Ryman Division South at the weekend.

Boss James Bracken's side came from behind three times to earn a 3-3 draw with Tooting & Mitcham at King George's Field on Monday.

Terry Murray struck the first equaliser before Josh Uzun twice levelled matters from the spot in the second half, while Jordan Clarke's second bookable offence saw Casuals finish the game with 10 men.

The result leaves Casuals, who won their final seven games of last term, unbeaten in five competitive games this season and a point clear of Carshalton Athletic at the top of the table.

Goals from Clarke and Shaun Okojie saw Casuals come from behind to beat Godalming Town on Saturday to leave Bracken confident of more success this weekend.

SPORTSbrief

ATHLETICS: Kingston & Polytechnic Harrier Mica Powell finished seventh in the U17 girls 300m final at the English Championships in Bedford on Saturday. The 16-year-old, above, set a new personal best of 40.91 seconds in the semi-finals, but was unable to repeat that effort as she clocked 41.21 in the medals race. There was drama in the U17 girls 80m hurdles as Pippa Earley was disqualified from Sunday's final for a false start, having cruised through the heats. Mollie O'Sullivan did not make the final of the U17 girls 800m, clocking two minutes 21.54 seconds as she struggled in her heat.

FOOTBALL: Skipper Danny Green, 30, has tipped Chessington & Hook United to win the Combined Counties League Division One title.
